Leah Lawrence is actually excited by her latest school assignment - create a short film based on an event in her town's past. Leah and her group decide to base their film on Julian Harvey. He was sent to jail fifteen years earlier for putting razor blades inside toffee and handing them out at Halloween, injuring several people. After he was released from jail, he vanished. When word gets out about Leah's film, she starts receiving ominous text messages, and becomes the target of several mysterious incidents. Somebody out there doesn't want this film to get made. What really happened fifteen years ago? Where is Julian Harvey now? Why is somebody working so hard to keep the truth buried? Leah must uncover fifteen years worth of secrets and lies before she finishes the film - and before somebody finishes her for good.
