If it would save lives, would you jump out of the frying pan and into the fire? The heroes make the impossible decision. They sneak out to find answers and take the fight to the enemy only to find a philosopher centaur, blind priest, and an exiled murderer. They travel into an ancient cemetery for an encounter with spirits of death and set out to assassinate the leader of the invading brutes in an effort to kill the beast by cutting its head off. The trio of heroes are not your average adventurers. Whiskers is the scarred prisoner of war who spends all of his time fighting out of his armor wondering why he brings it along. Eey is a dangerous elven assassin who spends her time cooking, climbing trees, and meditating. And Justin is a young and inexperienced acolyte priest that is babysat by the other two and yet he wants to be in charge. Add to this host of characters three supporting people such as a sage female centaur, a wood elf covered in mud with pet shrews in his hair, and a blind cleric who heals everyone except himself and we have a party to discover betrayal, human sacrifice, and a well-intended genius black dragon. Help comes by three veteran heroes (Whiskers, Eey, and Justin) who find conflict, mystery, treachery, and continental consequences. Good and evil blur as motivations, choices, and sacrifices are developed. Will the town be saved? Who are the butchering brutes? Will the heroes solve the mystery in time? Will peace finally come to the two decade war torn land? The trio of heroes is not your average adventurers. Journey With Death Series: The series follows the transformation of a spying killer elf into the incarnation of Death. She doesn't walk with Death, instead, she embodies Death. No one stands before the sickle of the elven grim reaper not devils, demons, dragons, or dukes. Want to get the latest updates on JJ's most recent work?
