Kyara was a prostitute turned stripper. She had no ambition in life except to make money and stay as far as possible from her old pimp. She ran into Kaylin by a tragic coincidence. She spends time with him and ends up falling for him, but fears that he doesn't feel the same way. Kaylin meets Kyara by accident. He has personal issues going on in his life, but he somehow feels that it's his mission to help her to figure out her purpose in life. In that time, he falls for her unexpectedly, and he doesn't know what to do about it. He knows all about her past and for that reason he wants to avoid falling for her, but the more he is around her the more power he has. Will Kaylin forget what everyone else has to say about Kyara and act on his feelings?
