One dark night and an end to a love story. Brought together by destiny, Sameer and Shruti were meant to fall in love with each other. Working in a MNC in Mumbai, they met each other and love blossomed. Exploring their first job, they never realized how and when the two people from 2 extreme corners of the country; a Rajasthani boy and a Bengali girl, fell for each other. But fate had different plans for them. Before their relationship could materialize, they parted ways with each other. Fortune played with their lives. Time and again they came close to each other only to be separated. Shruti left Mumbai, never to be heard of again and Sameer moved on to explore new opportunities in Delhi. Did destiny have some plans to unfurl a new chapter for them this time? Did they meet again? Like any other story, did they have a happy ending or did they accept the fact that they were not destined to be together? Did the revisited love stay in the lives of Sameer and Shruti?
