Four short tales of Victorian terror, each bound to the other by a chilling thread. London suffocates under the festering reek of its bursting graveyards. Ballet of the Bones – The curtain goes up on the greatest show on earth, but is everything all it seems? The Bone House – The grave digger reflects on his morbid life, but what does his future hold? The Engineer – His creations are beautiful, intricate and for a discerning palate. Encore – The director makes ready for the end of the show. 13,700 words.
